The Boston Trust & Walden Funds Announce the Appointment of a New Independent Director, Impending Retirement of Existing Nominating Committee Chair

March 9, 2016 – The Boston Trust & Walden Funds are pleased to announce the appointment of a new independent trustee, Elizabeth McGeeveran, effective April 1, 2016. McGeeveran directs the Impact Investing Program at one of the country’s largest private family foundations, The McKnight Foundation, dedicated to creating equitable and sustainable communities.

McGeeveran previously was senior vice president for governance and sustainable investment at F&C Asset Management (now BMO Global Asset Management), then a $150 billion investment firm based in London, where over a 14 year period she helped build the firm’s acclaimed sustainable investment business. All Boston Trust & Walden Funds emphasize investment in high quality companies with long-term sustainable growth potential, incorporating research and analysis on key environmental, social, and corporate governance (ESG) policies and practices. The Walden Funds implement comprehensive ESG investment guidelines and pursue corporate engagement to encourage more sustainable business practices. Elizabeth’s broad-based experience in financial services and recognized leadership in the field of sustainable investing bring a valuable perspective in the oversight of the Funds.

After a transition period through the end of 2016, McGeeveran will replace independent trustee James Woodward who has served on the Board of Trustees since 2006 and is Chairman of the Nominating Committee. Woodward, Chancellor Emeritus of both North Carolina State University and the University of North Carolina at Charlotte, will be greatly missed for his tremendous and well-rounded leadership on the Board, including his special expertise with governance practices. Indeed, Woodward’s retirement is the result of his insistence on pursuing best practice standards in mutual fund governance. After benchmarking Boston Trust & Walden Funds policies and practices to the mutual fund industry overall, Woodward convinced the board to institute a retirement policy in 2014 that paved the way for his own retirement. The Board will miss Woodward’s wisdom, dedication, and personal integrity.

Upon Woodward’s retirement, the size of the board will return to five trustees, four of whom are women. In this time when investors and businesses alike are seeking to increase the participation of women on boards, the Boston Trust & Walden Funds are pleased to lead the way.
